LAYING ASPHALT.

Bowling Green's System Subject of Government Inspection.

Bowling Green, Ky., Oct. 31.—V. W. Dow, a highway engineer of the Good Roads Department, Washington, D. C., is here for several days, inspecting Bowling Green's asphalt streets. The streets here are made by putting the asphalt on the macadam without the usual heating process, leaving it to be beaten down by travel over it. The experiment here has proved gratifyingly successful. The department is very much interested in the matter of asphalt on the public highway, as well as on the streets of cities, and is investigating and making tests along this line. Mr. Dow was greatly pleased with the asphalt streets here and the new process of building them.

A street of this asphalt is being tried here. While it promises some decided advantages, it is too expensive for general use.

LIVED TOGETHER

Only Five Months, Says Plaintiff in Her Petition.

Among the recent suits filed with the Circuit clerk for trial at the next term of court is that of Mrs. Maggie Messamore against Water Messamore, for divorce. Plaintiff states that they were married in January, 1905, and lived together until the following June. Abandonment is charged.

The parties live in the extreme north part of the county, near the Hopkins county line. J. T. Alexander, of Dawson, is the Attorney for the plaintiff.

Mrs. Messamore, in addition to a divorce, asks that she be restored to her maiden name, Maggie Moore.

Working Overtime.

The men in the blacksmithing department of the Forbes Mfg. Co. began Monday night working overtime and they are putting in twelve hours a day now. Overcrowded with work and a scarcity of help makes the night work necessary. This mammoth corporation ran through last winter without a shut down, and the prospects now are that they will be much busier this winter than ever before.

WAS BURNED TO A CRISP.

Horrible Death of a Colored Woman Near Pembroke.

CHILD WAS UNINJURED.

Alone in the House When Her Dress Caught From Fireplace.

The wife of Jim Long, a colored farm hand living on Mr. Lee Oliver's farm, near Pembroke, was burned to death Monday afternoon. Long was at work in the neighborhood and his wife and baby were alone in their house. The woman was in the act of placing her baby in a chair near the fireplace, when her dress caught and she was instantly enveloped in flames. She seized the child and ran out doors. Her screams attracted some men who were moving wheat from a granary near by and they ran to her assistance. The woman started back into the house, but fell and was placed on a bed and wrapped in bedding. A physician was immediately summoned and rendered all the relief possible, but death resulted in a few hours. The baby was not injured.

Shaping the Nails.

The nicest shape for the nail is oval, or slightly pointed, and the almond-shaped nail is indicative of good blood. If the nail is flat it is probable that the fingers are not tapering, and much can be done by manipulation to remedy that defect. While the fingers are soft from the soaking, they should be pressed, and the fingers will soon assume a more tapering contour, and the nails become "almond" in form. After filing the nails to the proper shape, a tiny emery board should be used to smoothen the rough edges, and if scissors must be called upon to remove any hard dead skin, or wire is known as "hang-nails," let them be the curved scissors of fine steel that are sold especially for the purpose and which do not injure any part. A few drops of acid placed upon the skin that has been pushed away from the nail will keep it from growing again. —The Home Magazine for October.

Actresses vs. Hens

One of the Boston papers recently published a report of a "hen race" in which various actresses on a summer outing participated. The method of the race was to attach a hen to an actress by a string tied to each leg (of the hen), and used as reins by which the hands of the actresses attempted to guide, drive, coax, persuade or "shoo" the hen over a fifty yards course. Accompanying the report of the event were pictures of the actresses winning first and second prizes in the race. These pictures were not of the actresses during the race, but in poses designed to have an advertising value on their business.

Perhaps we should be grateful to the ladies of the footlights for giving the hen a little incidental advertising. As the hen doesn't need that kind of advertising we think the obligation is the other way, but the use of such "news" suggests that either the actresses or their agents, or the newsgatherers have only faintly appreciated the advertising possibilities of domestic fowls.

Let one of the ladies get out in the due of early morn, and track a weary turkey hen to her nest, following her over rocks, through brambles and brush, and across ozy swamps. Let her run all the risk of mad bulls, snakes, et cetera, and let a corps of reporters, moving picture makers, phonograph record makers and reporters attend, and let them give us the events of the route without exaggeration or imagination, and we will warrant that if the thing is done true to life the results will be of general interest.

If poultry must be used to advertise "the profession," let the fowls have a square deal instead of pitting a little hen to some obscure back yard against a woman of the world; let the lady match her strength and skill with those of a vigorous gander and objects to her presence on territory occupied by his family, or let her undertake to evict a flock (only a little flock) of hens from a flower bed for which they have formed an attachment. In such occupations they would find possibilities of excitement far beyond those afforded by one little hen tied by both legs. The contest is too unequal. It is not a square deal. Give the hen a chance.—Farm poultry.

Turkey Breeding in the Balkans.

The turkey is very popular in south-eastern Europe, in fact I have seen larger flocks in Hungary and Servia than in any other land. In Hungary, where this branch of poultry culture has enormously developed of late years, I have seen flocks of white turkeys there finer than I met with elsewhere, even in southern France, which is regarded as the home of the white turkey. This variety is so popular because white feathers command a higher price than colored, and the plumage is of considerable value. But the general run of turkeys are black, a proof of their descent from the Mexican species first imported four hundred years ago, and not from the Bronze American which has been so largely used of late. The Hungarians have crossed in some of the Bronze blood, and often call their birds Bronze, but the black influence is predominant, which is true to a greater extent in Servia and the Balkan districts generally than in Hungary.

The type of bird met with is largely black in plumage, is somewhat small in size, not exceeding 12 to 16 pounds when fully grown, and in yearlings, when killed for Christmas range from 6 to 10 pounds. They are dark in leg, and have gray flesh. Very little attention has been made to improve the race, either in respect to size or flesh qualities, and like most of the fowls in southern Europe, their meat is somewhat dry, due to the method of finishing. The prices obtainable are small. Until the birds are fed in a manner which will increase and improve the flesh qualities, the trade cannot yield much to producers or traders.—Ex

Hay for Poultry.

The suggestion that hay makes a good winter food for poultry would have been ridiculed a few years ago, but experience has proved that clover hay is now almost a necessary portion of a hen's cold weather diet. Clover hay for fowls should be cut very fine, not over half an inch in length, stemmed and sealed, and fed once a day. A small quantity of corn meal and bran sprinkled over the cut hay will improve it. One reason clover is such an excellent food for hens is that it is rich in lime, a substance the hens require in providing the shells for eggs. It is about equal to corn as a flesh producer, and contains nearly thirty times as much lime. It is plentiful on all farms, and requires but little time in preparation. After the green food is gone it will keep the hens in laying condition, and increase the production of eggs.—Journal of Agriculture.

C. B. Eades, of the firm of Eades & Davis, proprietors of the coal yard on Seventh street and the L. & N. R. R., and who lives at 402 East Seventh street, says: "I saw Doan's Kidney pills advertised and so highly recommended by persons who had used them that I procured a box and gave them a thorough trial. I had suffered for a long time with a heavy pain across the small of my back, sharp and acute at times. When I caught cold it always settled in my back and there followed a weakness of the kidneys which was exasperating especially at night. I tried various remedies but none of them gave the satisfactory results that I obtained from the use of Doan's Kidney pills. I am pleased to say that they brought me great relief. I have recommended Doan's Kidney pills and will continue to do so to all my friends and acquaintances."

INSTRUCTIONS

To the Members of the Dark
Tobacco Growers Association.

Planters Have Highly Important Duty Before Them.

Glenraven, Tenn., Oct. 29.—General Manager Felix G. Ewing is determined to raise the standard of the tobacco controlled by the Planters' Protective Association to where it will have no equal. The following form of a card, has been sent by Mr. Ewing to his office, at Glenraven, from Tate Spring, with instructions to have fifty thousand printed, and to have they be distributed throughout the tobacco district, that every envelope addressed to members or persons having business with the Association from his office, that of any county or district chairman, employee, prize, or storage-house man, will contain one.

The card is as follows:
The importance of having tobacco properly prepared at home, before it is taken to the prize cannot be overestimated, as it will benefit the planter, the buyer, the prize and all parties concerned. Please exert yourself, to the utmost of your ability, to get every member of the Association to exercise extreme caution to have his tobacco as nearly perfectly prepared at home, as it is possible to have it. Be sure to put the same length, color and quality in the same hand. Above all, order your tobacco properly, as bad order affects the price very much. Do not have your light colored tobacco prized early, as winter prizes are black, and often this preparation means a difference of from one to two and a half cents per pound. As this work is done in the winter, when there is little else to be done, no thrifty planter will overlook this opportunity to get a better price, and to establish a very high standard, for our Association tobacco.

Our Assistant General Manager, Mr. W. E. Frazier, a thorough tobacco man, will devote much time, as soon as the sales are over for the season, to the matter of having better work done in the prize houses. He will keep in very close communication with the Inspector and Supervisors; and we may expect excellent results, that the tobacco world will be very quickly aware of; but to achieve the very best results, the planters must be made to realize that they have a very important part to perform. Every thoughtful member will, while benefiting himself, recognize the importance of raising the standard of the Association.

F. G. EWING, General Mgr.

It is conceded by many, who have watched the progress of the Association, that Mr. Ewing has generally accomplished, what he endeavored to do for the Association, and more rapidly than it was ever expected he could. No one doubts his accomplishing this last result, by calm, persistent determination. It means a complete education to thousands of members of the Association, but is most certain to result in benefit, which will bring many hundreds of dollars more to tobacco planters.

Made Rich Haul.

A daring robbery was committed at noonday in the center of St. Petersburg by a gang of revolutionists got away with about $200,000 from a wagon which was conveying the cash from the Customs Department to the Treasury. After a hot fight with gendarmes, in which two of the terrorists were killed and five captured, the remaining ones, believed to be eight in number, succeeded in getting away.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

An Interesting History of One of the Most Popular Household Remedies.

USED IN THE EARLY AGES.

From the dim dawn of antiquity, the peoples of the earth have utilized the twigs and leaves of the camphor tree as a potent factor in relieving and healing the many ills which the human flesh is heir to. In the early stages of civilization the heathens used camphor in a crude form, and through centuries that have passed it has come down to succeeding ages, a priceless heritage. The natives of the far east adorned their bodies with this product as one of the first and most simple remedies. From time to time camphor has been combined with other chemical compounds and used for the treatment of both external and internal ailments, though its chief virtue is as an external preparation.

KNOWN TO OUR GRANDMOTHERS.

The simplest form, and that best known to all of us—that familiar friend and companion of our childhood, with which our grandmothers so affectionately caressed our pains and aches, is whiskey and camphor. The old camphor bottle revives in our fancy the happiest recollection of our childhood's home, when care was an undiscovered country and the world was a vast playground created for our own amusement.

DEVELOPED BY A SCOTCH PHYSICIAN.

It remained however, for a distinguished Scotch physician and chemist to develop the most effective medicinal combination, with camphor as a basis. While acting as Pathologist of the Royal Infirmary and stationed in the Indies, in the year 1876, this chemist had occasion to investigate, from a scientific viewpoint, the effect of a solution of kerosene steeped in sandal-wood twigs used by the natives of that country to counteract the ravages of a plague. When he returned to the city of Glasgow, Scotland, and while connected with the Andersonian College and the Royal Infirmary of Physicians of that city, he engaged in an extensive series of experiments along the line of the secret solution used by these natives.

PERFECTED IN THE UNITED STATES.

After years of toil, pursued in many countries and many climates, in the year 1892, when a citizen and resident of the United States of America, he perfected a solution of camphor and essential oils which he called PARACAMPH, and which is a revolution in the treatment of external injuries. Thus has the wisdom of the East combined with the progressiveness and activity of the West, giving to the world its greatest healing remedy.

We do not hesitate to guarantee Paracamp to cure Rheumatism, Swelling, Neuralgia, Catarrh, Throat Troubles, Eczema, Tetter and Itching or Bleeding Piles, because many of our customers report to us daily that they have been cured by its use and because we know Paracamp will do exactly what we claim for it. Paracamp is a clean, safe, household remedy which every family needs every day in the year. Prof. E. A. Gullion has probably more to do with common school legislation than any other school man in the State. He wrote most of the amendments that have been made to the common school law in the last sixteen years and pressed them upon the legislature, having been selected for that purpose by the Kentucky Educational Association.
He served without compensation, too. Among his amendments was one abolishing the short term schools. If elected State Superintendent Mr. Gullion will not only know the wants of the schools and the school system, but will know how to meet them so far as legislation is concerned.

Judge Shute, Edward Stratemeyer,
Everett T. Tomlinson, and Hor-atio Alger, Jr., occupy prominent positions in the November AMERICAN Boy with their stirring serials.
Scarcely secondary to these are short stories whose very titles should stir up the interest of the boys: "A Visit from the Cheyennes"; "The Laird's Estate"; "The Society of the F. F. F."; "A Fight With a Panther"; "An Historic Walking Match"; "Tim's Pig"; "For the Glory of St. Mary's," a fine football tale. The color cover is appropriate to the Thanksgiving season. $1.00

Archbishop Mueller, of Cincinnati,
has decided the famous Spalding
Coleman case against the Louisville Bishop, Rev. W. G. McCloskey, who refused to let the body of Coleman, who was a devout Catholic, have funeral rites in the Catholic church
because the burial was to be in Cave Hill, a non-Catholic cemetery. The body was refused the rite after it had been taken into the church, and a great sensation was created. Coleman's brothers appealed to the Archbishop, who has ordered that a requiem mass for the repose of Coleman's soul be said, and that his grave

in Cave Hill be blessed, as is customary with the Catholics. The Bishop is ordered to make public announcement of the mass. It is understood that the Colemans are satisfied with the decision, and will take no further steps.

"Livest" of all the November
magazines is the Review of Reviews,
with every one of its special features and all its departments edited in the light of the news. Charles E.
Hughes and Governor Magoon, two "men of the month," are the subjects of character sketches. Copper, the great industrial fact of the month (see the market quotations),
is the topic selected for most extended treatment. The British House of Lords, a venerable institution that is facing a crisis in its history as Parliament reassembles, is the subject of a trenchant political essay
from the pen of W. T. Stead. There are other contributed articles, on Secretary Root's recently-completed
South American tour, its purpose
and its achievements; Mexico's fighting equipment, made conspicuous by the military failures of other Latin-American States; Dr. Schumacher,
the brilliant young German economist who is lecturing this fall at Columbia University on the Kaiser Wilhelm foundation; and the forthcoming visit of British teachers to the United States. In the editorial departments the Hearst movement and the latest phases of the Cuban situation are among the distinctively
"news" topics discussed at length.
To know what the political campaign in November represents one should read the November Review. If views on the eve of the election.

As a Superintendent of county and city schools at Carrollton, Prof. E.
A. Gullion put his schools on the highest plane of excellence. His practical knowledge, acquired in this way, will enable him to do great things for the common schools of the State.

The Beckham campaign committee has completed a poll of Christian county and expresses entire confidence that the Governor will have an ample majority in the county.
The organization is complete and unless figures lie there is a great surprise in store for somebody.

Hager will be several hundred votes stronger in this county than Gov. Beckham, for the reason that Hays has no strong personal following like Senator McCreary. Many McCreary men are outspoken for Hager and practically all of the Beckham men are for him.

Crenshaw will get practically a solid vote in this section, as his opponent is unknown in Western Kentucky. Crenshaw looks a sure winner.

TOO MUCH BITTERS.

Asylum Patient Takes Big
Drink and Dies.

Tom Kennedy, an asylum inmate from Todd county, died one day last week from the effects of a large quantity of Bitter Tonic, composed of strychnine, quinine and iron, which he swallowed. Kennedy was a trusty, and entering one of the negro wards he went to the medicine chest, where he secured a bottle of the bitters from which he took freely. A stomach pump was used and every effort made to relieve him but to no avail.

Kennedy was fifty-five years old and had been in the institution the most of the time for about ten years, having been discharged and returned several times.

The mass meeting in the interest that the meeting would conflict with the council meeting caused the postponement. Much interest is being manifested in the project, by many prominent citizens.

PROF. CASSIDY FOR GULLION.

As a School Man He is Interested in Real Friends
of Schools.

HIS ELECTION NEEDED.

Advises All Democrats to Vote for His Nomination Tuesday.

As a school man my interest in the coming Democratic primary centers
in the nomination of a State School Superintendent. I am interested in this for two reasons: As a Democrat
I feel a pride in having my party offer the best available man to the voters of the Commonwealth. As a school man whose heart and strength have been given to the cause of education I am doubly interested in having a man elected to this office who is honest, able, progressive, and whose experience in school work fits him to grapple intelligently with the burning question of the day: "How may the country people have as good educational advantages as those of the cities?"

Feeling that these two ends may be more nearly gained in the nomination and election of Hon. E. A.
Gullion than in that of any of his opponents, I shall gladly vote for him. He is a man and a Democrat of whom no Kentuckian need feel ashamed when it comes to voting at the regular election. He is a true man and a life-long Democrat.
Above all he is pre-eminently qualified, both by training and experience for the sacred office to which he aspires. He is not only well educated, but his training that peculiarly fits him for Superintendent of Public Instructions has been in the rural schools as teacher, and as Superintendent of County Schools. His long experience as teacher in the county schools places him in close touch with the humblest rural school in the State, and in sympathy with poorly paid, struggling rural teachers everywhere. His sixteen years experience as County School Superintendent has made him familiar with the entire school system. He knows the strong and the weak places, and he can intelligently direct its operations from his first day in office, while one without his wide experience would be at sea during a great part of his administration.

Loving Kentucky as we do, we all want to take from her the disgrace of illiteracy. Before we can make much progress we must have a leader who is tried and true. Such a man is Gullion. His nomination means little at the regular election,
because both Democrats and Republicans recognize his ability, worth,
and general fitness for the office.
His election will inaugurate a new era in education for rural Kentucky, something which we earnestly desire.

Yours for better things education-
ally,
M. A. CASSIDY.
Lexington, Ky.

Prof. Fuqua's Tribute.
I am writing in the interest of Mr.
E. A. Gullion, of Henry county, candidate for Superintendent of Public instruction. It has been my pleasure to know Mr. Gullion during his long service as County Superintendent of Carroll county, and as editor of a paper at New Castle. In both positions he has been an ardent advocate of improved education, in latter years using the columns of his paper advancing the cause of Kentucky schools.

During my term of office many improvements have been made in education. Two normal schools have been established; the term increased from five to six months; the per capita has grown to $3.30, the largest in the history of the State.
I have planned much other work
that will greatly redound to the benefit of the schools, and if elected, I am satisfied that Mr. Gullion will push these plans to execution. I shall remain in school work as a member of his State Board of Examiners, and as such will be closely identified with the cause of education.

Thanking you for your co-operation in the past, and trusting that

TWO SYNODS IN SESSION.

THEY ADJOURN TO-DAY.

EVANGELISTIC CONFERENCE.
The evangelistic conference of the Presbyterian church, U. S. A., closed its meetings in the First church Tuesday night. The event was one that will not soon be forgotten and its results will last indefinitely. The address by Dr. Calhoun, at the opening session Monday night claimed the closest attention of the large audience. He spoke in a most earnest and impressive manner of the need of a revival of the churches and the prayers of God's people for the evangelization of the world, and that if the people will come up to the requirements God will bless every effort by the churches for the advancement of His kingdom. The sessions during the day were largely attended and the best plans to secure revivals were discussed informally by the ministers in attendance. The sessions were brought to a close Tuesday afternoon with an address by Dr. Darby, of Evansville.

SYNOD "A."

Synod "A," which claims to be the legal successor of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, which held its last meeting at Greenville, was opened with prayer Tuesday night by Rev. Hunter Corbett, D. D. Dr. Corbett was the Moderator of the General Assembly which met at Des Moines, Iowa, in May, when the union of the Presbyterian and Cumberland churches was consummated. He has been Missionary to China for 40 years and is to return.

The opening sermon was preached by Dr. Joseph W. Cochran, of Philadelphia, who took as his text Daniel 10:10—"An hand touched me." This was a most powerful discourse in which the speaker emphasized the necessity of the ministry and laity getting into close contact with the unsaved so as to bring them to God. He believes that where one man is brought into the preaching of the word nine are led to God by personal appeal, a grasping of the hand and a straight look into the eye.

The election of a Moderator of Synod A, which will only exist for a year, when the General Assembly will merge it into the Kentucky Synod next May, at Columbus, Ohio, was taken up. Rev. W. P. Thurston, of Owensboro, was put in nomination and the stated clerk was directed to cast the ballot of the Synod for him.

Yesterday morning was taken up in hearing the reports of the Treasurer, Trustees of Auburn Seminary, and addresses by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, D. D., and Rev. Dr. Dickinson. After devotional exercises the usual Synodical sacrament was administered. The afternoon session called for reports from the committees on Finance, Publication, Church Extension Work, and Missions. These reports were received and the committees continued. Addresses were delivered by Dr. E. L. Warren, Stated Clerk of Kentucky Synod, and Rev. Dixon, D. D.

A popular meeting on missions was held Wednesday night, and addresses were delivered by Rev. B. P. Fullerton, of St. Louis, and Dr. Hunter Corbett, of China.

The synod will convene this morning at 8:30, and after devotional services regular business will be taken up and reports be heard from the committees on Sunday Schools and Temperance. This will be followed by an address from Rev. Dr. Hill. This afternoon the reports on education, Records, Bills and Overtures and Nominations will be heard. After the transaction of miscellaneous business the Synod will adjourn.

Journal, there being no night session necessary.

CUMBERLAND SYNOD.

The Cumberland synod convened in its own church Tuesday night. The opening sermon was delivered by Rev. W. M. Smith, one of the oldest and most eminent men of the denomination. His large audience followed him throughout with the closest attention. He is a great preacher, and many of his audience shed tears during his masterly effort.

The usual custom of unveiling the log cabin was observed, but organization was postponed until Thursday morning.

Mrs. I. H. Goodnight, of Franklin, Ky., secretary and treasurer of the Woman's Missionary Society, announced a meeting for yesterday at the Christian church. The question as to the authority to call the meeting was brought up, but it was finally decided to let the ladies settle the matter themselves when they convened.

Thursday morning the roll was called and the election of a moderator and stated clerk was taken up, which resulted in the election of Rev. J. T. Barbee, of Owensboro, as moderator and Rev. B. McEwin, of Sacramento, as stated clerk.

The order of business outlined for yesterday morning after devotional service was the appointment of committees and other business. Addresses were heard on Church History, and Denominational Literature.

Wednesday afternoon there were discussions on Our Books and Our Work. After talks on these two subjects, the regular business was resumed.

This morning and afternoon the following program will be observed: 8:30—Devotional.

FIVE LADIES

Engaged for Their Youth, Beauty, and Talent.

The company engaged for the new modern comedy by Cleveland Moffett and Hartley Davis, the vehicle which Joseph and Wm. W. Jefferson are using this season to exploit the talent inherited from their late revered father, contains five ladies especially engaged for their youth, beauty and talents. Beauty is a distinguishing feature, and when the Misses Blanche Bender, Ruby Bridges, Alexandra Phillips, Margaret Malcolm and Anna Bradley are gotten together for a production, something a little better than the ordinary may be reasonably expected. The dresses of these ladies are spoken of as being elegant in the extreme. This attraction, with its wealth of scenery and effects, will be the attraction at the opera house, Saturday night, Nov. 10.

General Turkey Talk.

LIKE to talk in a general way, especially so on the subject of poultry. My neighbors call me a "crank" and I admit it about poultry, for it is with them I spend most of my time and of course that we are with most is what we love best, and will speak of most frequently.

At this time of the season we are anxiously waiting for our fowls to develop and put on their new dresses—after such a hard struggle through the heat of summer—and such a strain on their vitality for feather production. This is certainly the most trying time of their lives, and they should be cared for more than at any other period. I have lost some very valuable turkeys during moulting season. Just before we see any signs of feathers they begin to get weak, their digestion becomes disordered, appetite fails and often they fall away and get very thin, and unless coaxed to eat, will refuse for days, thereby weakening feather production—slow growth of feather, and often late moulting. When I see pin feathers make their appearance, I usually catch my turkeys and pull out the old feathers, and it will not be long before they will have on their pretty new coat ready to be scored or to be sent to the show rooms.

It has been my observation that we should select our turkey hens in the spring for the next fall shows, and let them carry the young turkeys. They come up with their bright new coats on a month earlier than other hens who have gone on in their egg business—through the late spring and early summer—because they can't possibly have enough vitality to carry on both at once; so for our fairs and early shows, the hens that carry the young turkeys are ready by December or January we may select others out of the flock for shows at that time. I do not like the idea of showing one turkey to death, for turkeys can not bear confinement, and 'tis absolute punishment to confine them week after week in the show room—different shows. I think it is perfectly right to make before the public in competition, and the stronger the better; if my turkey wins, in strong competition, I appreciate it the more. I like the score card system of judging, because we can then see the imperfections of our birds and mate them accordingly. I also like the scoring in the show room to be where the owner can see and hear it done. It is an object lesson to them, a lesson that we all should learn—that is to score our own birds impartially, as we would like to have judges do in the show room.

According to my judgment we should select our show birds, then select what shows would be to our interest, and note exhibit at every show, just for the number of prizes we can get. But seek the strongest competition, where nothing but merit wins—and where the best judges are selected and your score card amounts to more than a mere card with a few figures on it. I do not like to show young turkeys before December or January, as only a few days confinement checks their growth, and it takes them a month or two to overcome this confinement. If, however, they are allowed to grow on range until December or January, they are strong, their digestion in good shape and can take on dry food, without impairing their vitality.

My young turkeys are out of the roost and gone ere I get a chance to see them—ramble all day, travel miles, but always come in home about sundown for their supper they are sure I have prepared for them, of skimmed milk mixed with one-third each of wheat and oats in whole grain, thickened with shorts or corn meal. I usually scald oats to soften them on the outside, which sometimes if not softened will stick in the throat and produce ulcers. They will follow me away off from among the chickens, and eat out of my hand, very much preferring it to eating on the ground, they all push in and get their share. I like to keep them gentle so they will not come to be handled later—when they are ready for sale, and markings to be carefully examined, and described to customers as individuals.

Turkeys are only reared successfully where they can have free range. The breeding stock should be two-year-old hens mated with an early hatched and fully developed tom. The laying qualities of the hen are more affected by feed than in any other domestic fowl. If fed a little extra with table scrapings she will lay earlier and sit sooner. To tame the hen is not difficult; a sly morsel from the hand will cause her to linger near the house and lay in the nests of the common hens, thus saving many a weary tramp to find her eggs. These should be gathered each night and wrapped in cloths and stood on end, turning twice per week. She should not be allowed to set until she has laid her third litter. The eggs should be put under common hens, 9 or 10 under each. When hatched the hen should have a large airy coop that is rain proof, as dampness is fatal. If a square glass can be inserted to let in light and sunshine it will add to their comfort.

Freedom from insects can best be insured by dusting the poult well with insect powder that is fresh and strong, then wiping the hen's feathers with a cloth wrung dry as possible from kerosene, putting the young turkeys into baskets covered with a blanket to get rid of the lice while the hen was drying off. She can be well fed and watered meanwhile and put in the coop. Then take the poult one at a time from the basket and rub the top of the head and sides of the neck with sweet cream. This will bring to view any head lice that stick in the flesh and suck the blood, causing many deaths that are thought to be caused by disease. It needs a keen eye to see this form of vermin. They are a dark blue, sticking in the flesh, and are often mistaken for pin feathers. When the feathers are wet with cream they can be picked off. I know of no ointment or powder that will kill them and not hurt the turkey. The cream dries in a very short time.

The trying time with young turkeys is when the ground is soaked and dampness penetrates their house. If one has an airy, dry shed that is not infested with rats, it is just the place for them, but rats are very fond of young fowls. A large box in a woodshed where light can fall upon it will answer. Put in a little gravel and a lot of fine chaff. Before putting the hens and turkeys in, cover the box with an old screen door or window, and they are safe from rats, cats and dampness. Change the litter each day and after all have drunk remove the drinking cup. Have the outdoor coop scrubbed and dried before returning them to it. Also put it on a fresh grass plot. Confine the poult to a narrow run by setting up boards for a few days changing to fresh quarters often. When they are first let out with the hen do not let them go far but drive the hen in before the poult are tired; never let them out until the dew has dried. For food, bread crumbs moistened and mixed with a little meat scraps and hopped onions will be best for two weeks.

Then a broad meal of equal parts of corn and oatmeal, sifted and baked into a cake with sour milk, soda and salt, just as if you were to eat it, moistening only the crust.

Never give more than they will eat in three minutes. I think many turkeys are killed by over-feeding.

As they grow older always feed at night so as to induce them to come home to roost. Make them set in a larger coop as soon as they become crowded. Do not confine to yards and feed all the old corn they will eat the last few weeks. The later hatched turkeys will be fit for market in February, when they bring a good price.

The farmer's wife should dress her own turkeys with such help as she can get on the farm. It is folly to pay a third party 4 or 6c per lb for dressing them. The weight of the young turkeys will largely depend on the weight of the parents, other things being equal, and one should never breed from young, late-hatched or immature stock.

A turkey hen has been known to lay until she was 6 or 7 years old, so it pays to feed high while laying.

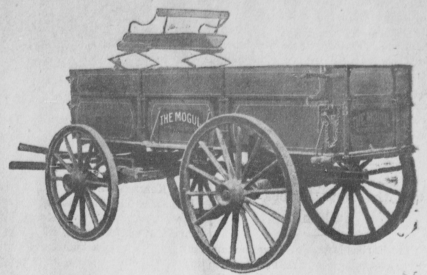

Never in-breed and, if possible, get toms from yards where wild birds are sometimes used to add hardness to the strain.—Poultry.

To Cure Scaly Leg.

Scaly leg is a fifth disease, if it can be called a disease, it being caused by a tiny mite which burrows under the scales of the legs and toes. It lives and breeds there. The remedy is very simple and easy.

It is only necessary to grease the legs with any kind of grease. An ointment of a third kerosene oil and two thirds lard is easily applied, and if well rubbed on and in half a dozen times a couple of days apart should kill the mites, and the scales will come off. Don't pull off the scales that have become large. That hurts the birds, something as pulling off your finger nails would hurt you.—Poultry & Pets.

PLANTERS' ASSOCIATION

Has Made a Prosperous and Happy People of Its Members.

GOOD SUGGESTIONS.

A Dip Into the Organization
and Its Original Origin.

To the Kentuckian:

The success of the Planters' Protective Association of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia, is a fixed fact; and this is acknowledged by the world. It has made a country prosperous, and that country's people happy. The Western Districts of Kentucky and Tennessee are being earnestly and thoroughly canvassed by agents of the Association, and the farmers in these sections are rapidly putting their tobacco into this organization, and Virginia's planters are doing so too.

With all these planters in, by Christmas next, our Association can trade, if it likes, directly with every country of Europe and of the world, that requires our tobacco in its trade.

By the way, it is a mistake to say that a conference with the American Society of Equity was called at the solicitation of anybody with authority to do so, who is connected with the Planter's Protective Association, because there was no occasion for our people to confer.

We are separate organizations, independent entirely of each other, and entirely dissociated in business. Therefore all reports to that effect are in error and a mistake.

The Hon. H. B. Sherman is equally mistaken when he asserts "that every movement in the last ten years for the betterment of the farmers has been suggested by the A. S. of E." He certainly knows that that Society has not been in existence that long.

As to our movement, we have positive knowledge that in the good year of 1903, the very first year that Hon. F. G. Ewing came to Robertson county, Tenn., to live, that he conceived the plan and began very modestly to suggest our planters movement to his friends and neighbors.

Hon. E. T. Fleming, now a prominent lawyer in Butte City, Mont., counsel and attorney for various mining concerns, and for the Western Union Telegraph Company, and who was in Nashville in 1894, suggested that we speak to Mr. Ewing upon the subject of a tobacco growers association; both Fleming and the writer having been classmates at school with Mr. Ewing in 1869, and as we both knew Mr. Ewing was a practical organizer of corporations, Ewing having organized two manufacturing companies, one to manufacture plows and the other carriages.

Having then, in March 1894, accidentally met Mr. Ewing at Samuel Black's livery stable on North Cherry street in Nashville, we spoke to him at once, and to our surprise found by his reply that he had the same matter under consideration, and had already spoken to his friends and neighbors of his home county upon the subject during the year 1893.

In this conversation with us, Mr. Ewing's last remark was to the writer: "You are right, keep up the fight." Thus encouraged, and knowing Mr. Ewing's interest as a large planter of tobacco in our county we have kept the fight up to this good hour, and will cheerfully do our best to keep it up—"till Felix G. Ewing calls off the dogs of war."

Ewing's idea has developed into the Planters' Protective Association of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia, (incorporated.)

By the mercy of God, and the good, practical common sense of these tobacco planters and their wives, their girls and boys, white and black, our Association has checked the oppression, in the language of President Roosevelt to our congressman, John W. Gaines, of "the worst trust in the world."

It has kept us out of the poorhouse; is making a large section of these three states prosperous, and the inhabitants thereof, both white and black, a most happy and thankful people to God and to Felix G. Ewing.

The truth alone compels us to write this to set Hon. H. B. Sherman right in this matter; we intend in no sense to impute any bad motive to him, in his remark, even if correctly reported, "that every movement for the last ten years for the betterment of farmers had been suggested by the A. S. of E."

What we mean here to say is that Mr. Sherman, when he made the remark, did not know these facts. Living men make history and history is written only of what has been done by those who are now dead.

Let all of the planters, who are members of our Association, go to work throughout the entire Dark Tobacco District of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia, and explain in business way everything connected with the Association's work of pricing, warehousing and selling of our tobacco to all new members. Such persons are our friends and acknowledge the good of the Association, but before they join us they desire rightly to know what becomes of their tobacco. Tell these people how they can see their crops weighed and received by the prizer and how they can get his receipt for their good, seconds and lugs; how it is graded and put in the hoghead; what houses and prizers to patronize and why. How they can draw money on the prizer's and warehousemen's receipt, and how much, at what interest; then how the same is sold and the returns of sales made with the check for their money; with every item of expense. We people in the Association know all this, but the outsider does not, and he will join us as soon as he learns it. They furthermore say that the Association in O. K. and has made them money and they want to join us.

If Not Your Taxes Will Be Increased 6 Per Cent.

Yesterday was a busy day with Sheriff Smith and City Collector Moore, as it was the last day for collecting taxes before the six per cent. penalty goes on. Collections have been good all of October and the city finds itself in a satisfactory financial condition for the first time this year. At the close of last night's business, Mr. Moore expected to be able to turn into the treasury about $36,000 collected during the month. Sheriff Smith has been too busy to figure up his enormous receipts for county taxes.
